"EASY MONEY" AT GUN POINT; "G MEN" LAUGH LAST!

ON JANUARY 23, IN FALL RIVER, TWO ARMED MEN JUMPED ON THE RUNNING BOARDS OF A MAIL TRUCK, FORCING THE OPERATOR, HERBERT B. REID, TO DRIVE INTO A SIDE STREET...

THERE THE MAIL DRIVER WAS REMOVED TO A WAITING SPAN, IN WHICH WERE SEVERAL MEN ARMED WITH MACHINE GUNS. REID BOUNDED AND GAGGED WITH ADHESIVE WAS PLACED IN THREE

THE SEDAN, ACCOMPANIED BY THE BANDIT-DRIVEN MAIL CAR, STARTED OFF AGAIN. THEY PULLED INTO A STREET OFF THE PROVIDENCE ROAD...

THERE THE MAIL TRUCK WAS BROKEN INTO AND MAIL SACKS CONTAINING A $129,000 PAYROLL WERE TRANSFERRED TO ANOTHER CAR. THE BANDITS FLED AND REID FINALLY FREED HIMSELF.

WHEN POLICE FOUND THE SEDAN, REGISTRATION PLATES HAD BEEN REMOVED. THE NUMBER WAS FURNISHED BY A WITNESS AND THE CAR TRACED TO A PETER DUBOIS OF PAWTUCKET

INVESTIGATING "DU BOIS," POLICE FOUND THAT HE HAD RENTED A ROOM IN A PAWTUCKET, R. I., LODGING HOUSE FOR ONLY ONE DAY. THE SEDAN WAS FOUND TO BE STOLEN FROM BOSTON.

WITH BOLT-NIPPERS, GUN AND ADHESIVE TAPE, LEFT BEHIND BY THE BANDITS, AS THEIR ONLY CLUES GOVERNMENT SLEUTHS TOOK UP THE TRAIL.

Just one of those "perfect" crimes! A laugh for gangland at expense of "dumb cops"! But Uncle Sam's mail is mighty dangerous loot. Uncle Sam's arm is long. So is his memory. It's just a little more than three months now since the Fall River robbery. But the "crime fort" at Warwick, R. I., is in the hands of the "G men." Its hidden loot is forfeit. Its darkest secrets are being uncovered, one by one. "Big shots" and "little shots" are alike in federal custody. Charles Schmidt, Boston Evening American staff artist, illustrates the first chapter in the tragedy-drama of gun-men against the law. The sketches show how easy "easy money" can be—at first.

REID'S FATHER QUIZZED, MAIL HOLDUP CAR SEIZED

Emil Ritich, father of Carl Ritich, leader of the Warwick gang, today was questioned at the Federal building here by United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford.

The elder Ritich was brought from Providence for the investigation into the $129,000 Fall River mail robbery with which authorities seek to link the Ritich gang. He remained with him was located Rosenfeld, owner of a number of Boston dress shops, who is said to have done business with the family of Joseph Fisher, one of the alleged gangsters now under arrest.

MAIL HOLDUP CAR FOUND. It is understood that Rosenfeld, together with Herman Horowitz, Brown University student, will be asked to testify when the grand jury resumes hearings Monday morning.

State police, under the direction of Captain John F. Stokes of the detective force, today were also seeking to link the Ritich gang with major holdups in 1933 at Woburn, Brookline and Quincy banks.

These developments followed swiftly upon the discovery, not far from the Ritich estate, of the truck thought used in the Fall River holdup. In addition, on the estate were found mail pouches, at least one of which was believed to have come from the robbery.

BROUGHT HERE GUARDED. It was understood that the truck and the pouches were being rushed to Boston under heavy guard. Federal authorities refused to confirm or deny the report.

Similarly, methods used in the Massachusetts bank holdups in 1933, in which the Ritich gang was linked, were being studied by the police here to link them with the Ritich gang, the state said.

Gunmen got $20,000 when they held up the Woburn branch of the Quincy Trust on December 4, 1933. $10,000 from the Brookline Trust on October 2 of the same year. $20,000 from the Eastern National Bank on November 10.

Reports that a special search of the Ritich estate for a missing $35,000 was being made by federal authorities were denied today by Chief Postal Inspector John J. Breslin.

Providence police, under the command of Captain Francis J. Buchanan, today seized the truck which they believed was employed in the Fall River holdup. It was found in a private garage a mile from Ritich's "crime fortress."

SECRET COMPARTMENTS. Behind the driver's seat were discovered two secret compartments, one of which had been used for carrying guns and the other to store loot.

Seizure was made after federal authorities questioned Sam Kaufman, one of the gang suspects under arrest in Providence.

A possible link with Brooklyn is being looked for. It was after the arrest in Worcester of Raymond Patriarca, 27, of Suffolk street, Worcester, one of yesterday's witnesses at the Merola inquest in Walpole.

He was taken to a room on a Worcester hotel in the company of a pretty brunette, who gave her name as Mrs. Helen Mears, 27, of Green avenue, Brooklyn. Police said she is also known as Margaret Craig.

The arrests were considered important by Worcester police. The raiders were headed by Superintendent William P. Finnegan.

WITH MEROLA, PA POLICE. Finnegan said, however, that today's arrest had no connection with yesterday's inquest into the slaying of Andrew Merola.

Patriarca was believed to have been one of last to see Merola alive, having been in his company in a restaurant nearby. Restaurant manager Merola went for his final ride, according to police.

Patriarca and Mrs. Mears were charged with having registered as Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown. The slaying of last night and a murder by freedom gained by members of the so-called Ritich gang were attributed by a "hunch." It was learned today.

The case was thrown wide open today when a witness searched again the room in which the Merola slaying was first released from custody for one night.

Mrs. Steele on Holiday

Under a mattress was the gun. One gang member whom police would not name offered to take authorities on a tour of inspection of the "crime castle," pointing out certain secret cupboards and caches known to him.

Postal authorities were convinced that it was his intention to lead them to that room, divert their attention, secure the gun and carry it back to his hideout.

Steele had not carried it in, authorities declared, because he had taken to the "crime castle" directly from headquarters where he was questioned.

No criminal could have walked into the Ritich estate for a constant patrol of inspectors and police have been keeping every inch of the property under 24-hour surveillance.

HUNT SECRET TUNNEL. In the firm belief that a secret tunnel still exists into the huge house, and that a member of the gang still at large had used it within a few hours, inspectors started intensive ferreting again today.

The city of Warwick today ordered a probe of the alleged inactivity of local police concerned with the gang headquarters unearthed at Warwick Neck.

A hearing will be held by the police commission in the city hall next Wednesday night. Chairman George L. Westcott announced.

Meanwhile the New York and Providence underworld was said to be passing the word along to "chip in" to a defense fund for the five men now in custody.

What attorneys will be asked to accept the defense fund as their fee for defending the crime syndicate was being kept a secret.

Postal authorities declared today that they had taken into custody every member of the Fall River mail truck robbery. Police were not so sure.

United States Attorney Ford today said the two-story "crime fortress" was being kept a secret.

Evidence to date shows he had been in the Fall River holdup, close association of Ritich with the New York gang.

Ford pointed out the entry into any controversy over the conduct of the case by federal or local officials.

Chief Postal Inspector Breslin said the federal men carried on their investigation in routine fashion and results spoke for themselves.

From another angle, it was learned that authorities had received valuable information in the case from a mystery woman, who had been seen by police.

BONUS HEADING TOWARD VETO

Washington, May 4.—Congress appeared today to be heading straight into a presidential veto on the soldiers' bonus.

Administration leaders conceded they virtually had lost their fight for a compromise acceptable to President Roosevelt. They were frankly dismayed by the Senate's evident determination to pass either the Vinson or Patman bills, providing for full and immediate cash payment.

Senate defeat of the compromise proposal for which Senator Harrison (D. Minn.) has claimed White House approval was believed to have been averted yesterday only by a sudden adjournment over the weekend.

The issue was suggested by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, after the Patman and Vinson forces conferred.

Senator Thomas (D. Okla.) amended the Vinson bill so it would actually appropriate money to the bonus instead of merely authorizing an appropriation.

The vote on this was 56 to 23.

Hit-Run Kills Boy Scout

Auburn, May 4.—A Boy Scout was killed and another seriously injured here today when they were struck by a hit-and-run driver while hiking home from a Boy Scout meeting.

The injured youth is Herbert Anderson, 16, of South street. He has a concussion of the brain and severe cuts and bruises on the body. He was taken to St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester.

The boys had almost reached the Anderson home on their hike from the meeting when an automobile came down the road and struck them.

Struck 20 feet in the air, the Starboard boy was killed instantly. Anderson, semi-conscious, was able to make his way to his home.

With a broken automobile light as their only clue, police started search for the death car. The light was found a short distance from the scene of the tragedy.

DEDHAM HELPS Millen Trial Bill

Dedham taxpayers will be reminded of the Millen-Faber trial when they pay taxes.

In setting the tax rate for 1935 at 24.4 percent, the city assessor announced today 22 cents of this amount will go to make up the $8000 levied on the town by Norfolk county to defray expenses of the trial.

Cities and towns in the county are being assessed at a similar rate.

YACHT FIRE Victims Rescued

Northport, N. Y., May 4 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carl of Huntington, Long Island, were rescued from their burning pleasure boat today shortly before 8 a.m.

The fishing vessel, by its captain, E. C. Cullough, and later taken ashore by Captain William Leach of the Northport Coast Guard station.

May Day military demonstration in Moscow were impressed especially by the great number of high-powered tanks, or "land battleships," enough of them to travel over the country in solid rows, like old-fashioned cavalry of infantry, but ten thousand times more efficient.

Our army, which talks about "cooling the use of cavalry" and similar nonsense, ought to investigate that.

Here Ulrich Fleischauer has fresh news. As a "Nad expert," he says the League of Nations was planned by Jews, to unify the language, money and religion of Israel. Also, Herr Fleischauer discovers that Jews "gain their ends by starting revolutions." Believe it or not, they started the Russian revolution, having first hired somebody to assassinate Archduke Ferdinand at Sarajevo, thus starting the World War.

The German discoverer does not explain why Trotsky, head of the Bolshevik army, one of the ablest of the Bolsheviks, was expelled from Russia, if that was a Jewish revolution. The Nazi fanatic seems not to know that it is possible to be too ally.

One English town will celebrate the King's jubilee by distributing free beer. Might it not be a good idea to make light beer part of the regular food supply of men in this government's CCC camps?

Minus government tax, it would cost little, keep men contented, abashed, or diminished, complaints of some workers spending their small supplies of money with bootleggers.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce grows, while "big business" views with alarm, but here and there amazing breaks through the clouds. For instance, the Hiram M. Chittenden Company, for the first quarter of 1935, reports the largest profit for any quarter since 1931.

With eight million dollars in cash and no current bank loans outstanding, the company feels cheerful. Roy D. Chapin, president of Hudson Motors, has been back on his real job for two years, after giving up time to hard government work in Washington. That may account for it.

Four men were arrested today by federal officers charged with conspiracy to pass and sell government Emergency Relief Administration pay checks.

The arrests were made by Frank Ferrara of Cambridge, John H. Murray of Boston and John J. Curley and John J. Kerk, both of East Braintree.

PAWNBROKER Gay for Jubilee

London, May 4 (AP).—A St. Martin's Lane pawnbroker broke out of the hard and fast rules of his business to go gay today for the King's Jubilee.

A workman climbed a ladder and painted three gold balls above his shop, a vivid reminder of the jubilee. This was quite a shock to a couple of the pawnbroker's competitors on the street.

"Tragedies"

Gloria's Visits

MOTHER'S HEARTBREAKS

New York, May 4.—Up in the Vanderbilt house in the East Seventies where Gloria comes home to her mother week-ends there is tragedy.

It was that way today. Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt was back from a hurried vacation in the South and her 11-year-old heiress-daughter was "visiting."

Although the mother was reopening her court battle to reclaim her child, from her own lips comes the story of the tragic aspects of these week-end reunions.

"When Gloria first comes home for week-ends," Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt said, "at first she is—strange, and strained, and I can see that she remembers what has happened to us."

"But it doesn't take long before she is herself again, before she forgets and we play and talk and go to church and to the movies just as we used to do."

No, perhaps not just as we used to do. Perhaps that can never be again. But isn't it just possible that out of all this, in time, may come an even deeper love and understanding—the kind that comes to people when they have been through such sad and dangerous ways together? I worry about her so."

What No Cameras?

Lady Furness, Gloria's twin sister, Thelma, said:

"When the child comes home—my son is here, too, with us—it takes Gloria a few hours to get her normal again. You see, it's very difficult under the circumstances, as you may imagine, to use any ordinary discipline."

"I've very much in favor of discipline with children. I do not mean punishment, but my son is spoiled and I have lived there a great deal, and I like the English system of raising children. I think they are happier."

"Gloria does love me, and I think, and she is very happy and happy and laughing like any other baby. But with that threat that she has to return to her aunt always hanging over her head, with the memory of how the eldest thing has been so distorted in the past, with the memory of the untruths that have been told before, you can imagine that it is difficult to give her a normal life."

"Do you know what she said to me the other day?"

"Gloria's mother said, and it was easy to see how hurt she was. She said, 'I have looked out the window and I have been ready to go for a stroll in the park, and she said, 'But where's papa? Where are the cameramen and the reporters?'"

Nearly in Tears

She began to laugh, and the laughter was still closer to tears, but it was so funny, the little monkey, and she looked so serious. But that's a very tragic thing to happen to a little girl of her age. I try, when she is at home, to keep her away from all that—we went to the circus the other day and I thought we'd have such a good time, and I and my sister and her little boy. But—someone in the crowd recognized me and there was no peace and we had to come home. It's too bad when things have come to the place where a child can't enjoy the circus."

"And then—then—you see, though I have had in the past a very high regard for my sister-in-law," she broke off suddenly, and a little half smile touched her lips with this reference to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. "It's funny. I liked Gertrude the best of all my relatives-in-law."

"You see, I was married when I was so very young—only 17. I was strange. I'd lived in Europe most of my life. I didn't understand American customs very well. I met my husband while my sister, Thelma, and I were living alone in New York—when we were only 17."

"My mother—who now is so particular about the care of my little girl, who insists that she should be brought up in the United States—was away, and Thelma and I had an apartment. We were there alone. I met Reggie—and we fell in love."

"I tried to come home and visit at the Vanderbilt family, who were all so much older, who had their own traditions, was not easy. I adored my mother-in-law, Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt. She was a great woman. And she was very fond of me. I think she proved that when she left me $100,000 in her will—and I have always hoped that wherever she is, she knows that the money she left me is the money that has enabled me to fight for little Gloria."

"I won't have a penny of it left when it is all over, but I am sure in my heart she would be glad I had it and used it for the purpose, even if it was to fight her own daughter. Of course, I have been much to fight the Whitney millions, but without it I should have been even more helpless than I was."

Then she went back to the child. "You see, I don't agree with the way she's being brought up. That's awful. Her lands! If you could see her poor little hands. The nails all broken and hang with everything. Maybe that seems a little thing but—but Gloria isn't a beautiful child. I think in time she will be. But she needs care, she needs to be taught feminine things."

"She wears jerseys and sweaters all the time. And they have high heels, shoes on her. I always had her shoes made—because her feet are too big for ordinary little girl's shoes, and now she wears regular women's shoes, and they look so awful and they can't be good for her. She is developing little rough habits—after all she is a little girl. I want her to be sweet and charming and gentle, not a hoyden. My mother was always very particular about such things with my sisters and me."

Never Interfered

"My mother-in-law once told me," said Gloria slowly, "that she had always made it a practice never to interfere with her children nor any of her children's affairs. I wish Gertrude had felt the same. I wish my mother-in-law had been alive. Or my husband. I was very much alone, you see. But there was one glorious thing about all this. My friends. Only one of them let me down."

"My sisters traveled miles to be with me. Prince Khrushchev and his charming wife. At just one telephone request from me, came from Germany—and they had been invited to the wedding of Prince George and the Princess Marina—the first time since the war Germany had been invited to a royal event—and they thought being mixed up in this—scandal—might cause the invitation to be canceled, and yet they came. Lady Milford-Haven, who isn't a rich woman, sent her lawyer from England. He looked at the testimony and said, 'But really, if that's all they have, I shall instruct my client to disregard it entirely. It's ridiculous.'"

"Oh, I had a grand time. Next time I want to see the whole city. There are so many people there, too."

New Study of Smiling Alyce

Alyce Jane McHenry came to Boston from Fall River in a surprise visit and one of the first things the little "upside-down" patient did was to have this studio portrait taken. Alyce was thrilled by Boston and plans to come again soon and "see everything."

Twice this week the Woolworth heiress has left the seclusion of the big George B. Thatcher home and has been seen in the streets of Boston and Carson City.

Although no definite announcement has been made, she is expected to file her divorce suit against Prince Alyce May 13.

Accompanied by a woman companion, she straggled through Reno shopping district yesterday until she was recognized by bystanders. As a curious crowd began to form, she hurried off to a waiting automobile.

Among the places visited by the Princess was the Reno "Five and Ten" cent store, one of the chain founded by her grandfather. She spent nearly a quarter of an hour in the store, visiting the various departments and commenting on the display.

Clerks whispered excitedly as the princess passed smilingly by their counters.

Earlier in the week the famous young heiress spent an afternoon in the historic old Capitol building at Carson City, 30 miles from here.

Dr. Briggs' Son To Wed Deb

Troth Follows Brilliant Wedding of Girl's Kin

Washington, May 4.—Fighting for its life before the Supreme Court, in the Schechter poultry case, the NRA was suddenly confronted with the most perplexing problem of its whole existence—all about women's panties.

It happened like this. A man, called "woman" in the public press and sought permission from the code authority which watches over such matters for permission to demonstrate them in department stores.

The code authority turned him down, and he appealed to the industrial appeals board. Amos J. Trease, chairman, and Alexander McKnight, counsel for the complainant division, showed the code authority, which watches over such matters for permission to demonstrate them in department stores.

Merle Vincent, deputy in charge of that division, studied the matter very carefully and passed the buck again along to Sherman Trowbridge, an assistant deputy. So Trowbridge, an otherwise incompent figure in the New Deal, emerged with a brilliant idea which should make for advancement.

"If these panties are really invisible it would cause no end of embarrassment to have them demonstrated in department stores. If they are not invisible then we should say so."

There the matter rests. No decision has been made and the whole thing may come before the NRA Recovery Board of seven, middle-aged men.

Pope, Japan To Enter Pact

Vatican City, May 4.—For the first time in history the Holy See and Japan are to enter mutual diplomatic relations, privates reported today.

They said the establishment of a nuncio in Tokyo to replace the present apostolic delegate and the establishment of a Japanese embassy or legation in the Holy See is imminent.

In high Vatican circles it was said the understanding between the two of the rising sun, with its mystic Oriental brilliancy, and this center of the Roman Catholic world followed lengthy negotiations.

The negotiations came to a head recently, these sources said, and a formal announcement concerning the foundation of mutual diplomatic relations would be forthcoming in "due time."

GAME On Eve of DEATH

GIRL'S KILLER WAITS CHAIR

By International News Service

Rockview Penitentiary, Ballston, Pa., May 4.—Apparently resigned to his fate and determined to "die game," Robert Allen Edwards, 22, "American Tragedy Slayer" of his one-time sweetheart, sat on the threshold of death today.

Told to be brave by a grief-stricken father, Edwards donned a condemned man's garb here today and walked to a death cell.

With each step he gazed at the little green door he knew he must pass Monday at 12:30 a. m. to the electric chair for killing his unwedded girl, Freda McKechnie, 27.

Although in good spirits, "Bobby" smoked numerous cigarettes as he conversed with guards on the death watch.

His thoughts may have wandered back to happy days when he carried on a dual romance with Freda at the home of Crain, 21, East Aurora, N. Y., school teacher. But he did not talk about that courtship which was climaxed by the "American Tragedy" on July 30.

Nor did he comment on Margaret or her failure to communicate with him since shortly after his arrest.

As for those disapproving chatter in his gay, young life, "Bobby" shrugged.

"Some things had better be left unsaid."

"I don't fear death," he said nervously. "I can go through with it."

Edwards, father of the doomed youth, admonished his son in a final visit last night.

"Be brave, my boy, be brave."

U. S. REFS FAIL TO FIND UTOPIA ON SOVIET FARMS

LABOR TURNS TO SLAVERY, VICTIM TELLS SANGER

By R. H. SANGER

Harvard Graduate, Son of Colonel W. C. Sanger, Assistant Secretary of War Under Theodore Roosevelt.

TERRIBLE disillusionment has been the portion of American Socialists and Communists, usually skilled workers, who have gone to live and work in the Russian "Utopia, in the new 'proletarian paradise.' OF DOZENS were MET DURING THE YEAR IN USSR, FOUR OUT OF FIVE WANTED TO RETURN.

But they were penniless, with utterly no chance of saving the price of passage home.

OR THEY WERE PENNILESS, HALF-STARVED; AND IN THEIR EARLIER ZEAL HAD TORN UP THEIR AMERICAN PASSPORTS, TO BECOME SOVIET CITIZENS.

For these the cost of an exit visa is $400, in foreign money. They are trapped.

Slave Labor

It was an American worker in a giant tractor plant, a "preferred industry"—as to privileges, pay and food—who said to me:

WHEN A MAN CAN'T DECIDE FOR HIMSELF WHAT KIND OF WORK HE WILL DO, OR HOW LONG HIS HOURS WILL BE, WHAT WAGES HE WILL WORK FOR, AND WHAT FOOD HE WILL EAT, AND WHEN A MAN CANNOT GO ON STRIKE TO PROTEST WAGES SO LOW THAT THEY PERCENT OF THE WORKERS IN HIS FACTORY HATE OF STARVATION, THAT'S NOT LABOR, THAT'S SLAVERY.

It was an American worker on a state farm—another type of "preferred" Soviet project—who said:

I OFTEN WORKED EIGHTEEN HOURS AT A STRETCH LAST SUMMER, AND EVEN NOW WE AVERAGE MORE THAN TEN. I AM TOO WEAK FOR SUCH LONG HOURS.

Recently I had nothing but cabbage and water to keep me going for three whole days. The crowd that are running this country don't seem to realize that a man can't work without food. I worked for some hard bosses in the States, but never anything like this.

A typical request to us was: "TELL THE WORKERS IN AMERICA NOT TO BELIEVE WHAT THE COMMUNISTS SAY ABOUT RUSSIA BEING A 'WORKERS' PARADISE'." We understood their bitter disillusionment, because we also had entered Russia as believing Communists. Be we could go home.

The case of Jake Kivovitch (he is a real person, but that is not his real name), was typical of that dozens of American workers we met in different parts of Russia.

Savings Lost

Born in Poland thirty-five years ago he had been brought to America when very young. He had a grammar school education, became a carpenter and had saved $2000 by 1931. Then he was jobless and half his savings were lost in a bank crash.

Things in America looked bad to him. A Communist friend pictured Russia as paradise by comparison.

A high-up member of the Communist Party promised him a job in one of the new Soviet industrial cities at the equivalent of $250 a month.

He withdrew the remainder of his savings and went to Russia in the spring of 1932. His Moscow reception exceeded his wildest dreams. He was given a nice hotel room, cheap. As guest of honor at a workers' club he was toasted for his wisdom in leaving "the land of capitalist exploitation."

IN A FRONT RAILROAD CAR OF HONOR, OPPOSITE STALIN HIMSELF, HE WATCHED MILLIONS MARCH THROUGH RED SQUARE ON MAY DAY.

He was carried away with enthusiasm. He gave the rest of his sav-

The AUTHOR

R. H. SANGER, author of this series of articles, is the son of Colonel W. C. Sanger, who was Assistant Secretary of War under Theodore Roosevelt. The family is one of the oldest, and best known in New York State, having resided at Sangerfield House, Sangerfield, N. Y., on the maternal side he is also the grandson of the late William Earl Dodge, eminent philanthropist.

Mr. Sanger was graduated from St. Mark's Preparatory School, from Harvard and from Harvard Business School. He is the granddaughter of George R. James, of Memphis, Tenn., a member of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington. She is a graduate of Wellesley College.

All Changed

"Then everything changed," he said. He was moved to a dark room in an old tenement with three other men. His food became coarse, his bread, potatoes, cucumbers, cabbage, cereal and tea.

Days were spent in endless laments, struggling with the red tape necessary to getting his job. After two months he was sent to help build the new automobile factory at Nizni-Novgorod, now renamed Gorki.

CONSTRUCTION WAS BEHIND SCHEDULE. HE WORKED TWELVE HOURS A DAY.

His 250 rubles a month bought less than his $20 a month "relief payment" in America.

The promised "socialist apartments" were unfinished. He lived with 120 other men, in a leaky barracks. But, he said, he was lucky. Many slept in dugouts and caves.

He was told that this condition was "temporary." By spring of 1933 conditions were worse. Two workers died of starvation in his barracks in a single night.

Trapped

When his best friend died of typhus, because the hospital was too crowded to take more patients, Kivovitch decided he had seen enough of "proletarian paradise"; he would go home.

It was then he learned for the first time that $400, in foreign money, was necessary for a visa.

He WAS TRAPPED. He would go to Moscow, where conditions were better. He had to wait three weeks to get a rail-way ticket. Then his "brigade foreman" and a GPU agent came to his room and "advised" him to stay in Gorki and help build socialism.

He understood. He stayed. In Stalingrad, a tractor looking man of 45, an electrician, Socialist since the World War, said:

"I would give my right hand to go back to America, but my passport is lost. When my wife inherited $700 we decided to take a look at Russia. En route from Rostov to Stalingrad, we were in a train wreck, and our passports and money burned. We had brought our daughter along to finish her education. It was finished, all right. We are caught here, imprisoned for life."

THE MISSES AND I HAVE GIVEN UP HOPING: BUT COULD YOU LEND OUR GIRL MONEY FOR AN EXIT VISA. IF YOU'LL ONLY TAKE HER TO AMERICA, SHE'LL WORK FIVE YEARS AS YOUR MAID TO PAY IT BACK."

Most of these Americans had gone to Russia because they were unemployed. McGee (which is not his real name) was a Birmingham, Ala., lathe and $30 a week, on promise of a foreman's job at Magnitogorsk at a big increase in pay.

McGEE AND HIS WIFE AND BABY LAY UPON A HOME-MADE BED.

I occupied the only chair in their eight-by-eight cubical locale, a cold and drafty barracks on a state farm six hours out of Moscow.

"I came on ahead of my family," he said. "I wasn't sent a foreman. I wasn't sent to Magnitogorsk."

"I was sent here, where my knowledge was wasted. I found that my 250 rubles a month had a value of about $5—two cents each."

Forgot Promise

"I WROTE TO MY WIFE TELLING HER NOT TO COME. THE LETTER WAS CENSORED. SHE ARRIVED ABOUT THREE MONTHS AGO, BRINGING THE BABY AND OUR OLDEST BOY, WHO IS SIXTEEN."

"The Communists promised her he would have good schooling; there would be plenty of milk for baby. There is no school. No milk. We sold some of my wife's brought, to keep the baby alive."

"The director said that if I would install two lathes in the machine-shop before tractors came in for repair, he'd send my son to Moscow to school."

"I've done my part, but the boy is still here. We can't go home. That sounded good to me, so I came over."

"BUT I WAS WRONG. I'D RATHER BE A DRIFTER ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD THAN IN RUSSIA."

"In other places when you work you get something for it. Here you don't even get fed."

Among our friends in Moscow

during that time in Russia there was no more pathetic figure than eager little Swedish-American mechanic with whom I became acquainted. An idealist, a student, steeped in the theory of communism.

IN NOVEMBER, 1932, HE JOINED A WORKERS' GROUP GOING TO USSR, CONTRIBUTING $200. ALL TOWARD BUYING FARM MACHINERY. ONCE ON THE FARM HIS IDEALISM SUFFERED DEFEATED SHOCKS.

Peasants did not know how to operate the complicated machinery. The director would not let the Swedish-American start classes to teach them, because, he said:

"THOSE MEN LEARN TOO MUCH THEY WILL LEAVE THE FARM AND GO TO THE CITY WHERE THEY CAN BETTER THEIR CONDITION. AND WE WILL BE LEFT SHORT-HANDED."

Included in the purchased machinery were an electric washing-machine, a clothes drier and an electric iron. These were left out in the rain for three months.

"THEY WOULD HAVE BEEN THERE YET IF SOME RED ARMY MEN HADN'T BEEN SENT TO PUSH HARVESTING ALONG."

For six months, my Swedish-American friend watched workers starve in leaking, barn-like barracks, two months behind in their pay; while directors lived richly, in apartments, with servants; until he could stand it no longer.

He went to Moscow to complain. The directors wired ahead of him. He was branded a counter-revolutionary. He was fired. His bread-card was taken away.

Worst of all, the director held his passport until he stopped complaining.

He was, and with shattered ideals, he was looking for work in Moscow when I knew him.

In contrast with the pathetic Swedish-American, Harry—was the funniest expatriate we knew. He was a drifter and admitted it.

He's seen plenty of the seamy side.

"I WAS SO LAZY MY FAMILY THREW ME OFF THEIR FARM IN GERMANY YEARS BEFORE THE WAR," HE SAID. "I'D RATHER GO TO AMERICA. I DON'T LIKE TO WORK. I NEVER HOLD A JOB FOR LONG."

"I heard about Russia being a land of no millionaires and no beggars. That sounded good to me, so I came over."

"BUT I WAS WRONG. I'D RATHER BE A DRIFTER ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD THAN IN RUSSIA."

"In other places when you work you get something for it. Here you don't even get fed."

HALIFAX BUAST SURVIVOR WINS GIBBONS $100

And so—because she dreamed and she moved her bed into a corner—Mrs. Henry W. Gould of 11 Windsor street, Worcester, wins $100 for having saved her own life back nearly 20 years ago in Halifax, N. S.

Mrs. Gould wins the $100 award for the best true story of horror and real life adventure for the month of April in the Floyd Gibbons cycle.

Each day, Floyd, world famous adventurer himself, awards a prize of $10 for true life narratives and $100 each month for the best and most thrilling in that month.

Mrs. Gould was born in April with her story of how she dreamed tragedy night after night, with floods moving in upon her, but with one corner of her Halifax home strangely left clear.

Finally, convinced by the nightly dreams, she moved her bed into the apparently abandoned corner and placed a trunk in the spot where the bed had stood.

Although she braved herself for her superstition, she was repaid. One morning she awoke in a cloud of dust. The house was still shining. Outside, the sun was shining, but inside the house there was shambles.

Through the trunk, standing where the bed had stood, came a moving it, jagged pieces of wood were piled. The rest of the room was a wreck. But in the corner where she had moved her bed, everything was serene.

An ammunition ship had blown up in the harbor, destroying most of Halifax.

McSweeney Plans Shakeup To Better Police Force

Radical changes are to be made in Boston's police department very soon, Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney announced officially today.

There will be changes in the department, he declared, but I am not prepared to say just what they will be, nor am I ready to say when they will take place.

"Since taking office, I have made an intensive study of the department with the plan in mind of making it more efficient."

"The purpose of my study was to become thoroughly acquainted with my work so that nothing will be done on a hunch-and-a-half basis."

He has talked with numerous department heads with regard to altering their respective units and I shall talk with several additional department heads before my plan is carried out."

Asked if the delay in having policemen draw lots for vacancies had anything to do with the proposed changes, McSweeney replied: "Absolutely not. The matter of vacancies is before me at this time and will be dealt with properly next week."

McSweeney declined to discuss rumors within the department that he would make numerous transfers, but intended to announce them gradually and demoralize the department.

The Boston master proceedings before Governor Curley and the council are reported to have delayed the proposed changes, but McSweeney declined to discuss the situation.

HOPKINS PLAYS NEW DEAL FOES

By International News Service New York, May 4—Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, warned against a "small minority of business interests" who "have now marshalled their conventions" in Washington at the opening of the annual Catholic Charities drive of the diocese of New York today.

At the meeting, Cardinal Hayes said: "The security program of our beloved President is, I am confident, taking into consideration the preservation and the conservation of these principles of action as vital to man's liberty and man's happiness here on earth."

Lashing out at business interests opposing the New Deal, Hopkins declared: "There are a few men representing a small minority of the business interests of the nation, perfectly ignorant of the social consequences of their ruthless selfishness, who, if they had their own way, would bring down even their own selfish world around their heads, and who regard any determined effort to give economic democracy to a political democracy as dangerous and subversive to American tradition."

METROLOGISTS WITH LEGAL CHARGE 'FASCISM'

New England Methodists and the American Legion clashed openly today over a resolution passed at the 139th New England Methodist conference at Lowell.

The church representatives—through the Rev. J. Lester Hankin, former state chaplain of the veterans organization—charged that the Legion was "sponsoring the approaching menace of Fascism."

The resolution read: "We warn our people against the approaching menace of Fascism. It is not coming upon us as rapidly through the radio as it is through the newspaper, the pulpit, the classroom, the American Legion and other so-called patriotic organizations."

"Fascism is neither Christian nor American, and certainly not Protestant. At present, it reveals itself in the movement to improve the so-called oath of allegiance to teachers, professors and other educators."

The resolution was adopted with out discussion.

RETOUR BY TWOMEY
Jeremiah J. Twomey, of Lawrence, state commissioner of education, immediately sprang to the defense of his organization. He said:

"Such criticism is consistent with the general attitude of particular conferences in the past."

"Warning against Fascism is the first approach to an endorsement of any American Legion patriotic program."

"The Rev. Hankin, through his contacts with Legionnaires in the past, must indeed feel that he is violating the true sentiment of the American Legion by endorsing Fascism in this country."

Apparently, his reversion against the proposed oath, which is sponsored by the American Legion, has distorted his views of American Legion endeavors.

ALIGNED WITH FASCISTS
"This is the same group that conspicuously displayed the movement of pacifists throughout this country in opposition to our program of national defense. The statement that true patriotism is not synonymous with Legionism displays a grave ignorance of true Americanism."

Legionism, whose program is as realistic as in a true democratic method, that of the action of a national convention wherein delegates from every department of this nation give expression of the views of the millions of Americans who are representing."

NUCLEAR STOKERS
"The Rev. Hankin, who is a member of the American Legion, is a stoker of the nuclear fire."

Tolson, G. May 4 (INS)—Union strike leaders stood firmly today on their demand for negotiations for the National Labor Relations board.

Francis J. Dillon, conciliator for the American Federation of Labor in the industry, said the proposal provided for the men return to work.

Strike leaders demand the negotiations first. Further conferences are scheduled.

Chain Letter Racketeers Clog New England Mails

U.S. THOUSANDS PROVE DUPES OF SCHEME

Have you a little chain letter in your home?

If you have, keep it there, and hang on to your dime or dollar or $10, whatever it solicits.

Hundreds of thousands of those letters are clogging the mails in a new get-rich-quick racket that since 1929 Postoffice Department has branded as illegal.

Some mid-western Post started the thing and it has worked its way into New England on a scale that has the letter carriers banging on the ropes.

The racket is a complicated version of the old good-luck chain letter scheme.

In that institution, however, no money was figured. The receiver merely had to send to five of his friends a copy of the letter. By doing so he was supposed to perpetuate his good luck.

By failing to do it, he was supposed to endanger his luck.

Thousands of superstitious persons carried the thing along until recently reached even the hard-shell skeptics so that it came to the end of the chain and died a natural death.

BIG MONEY PERHAPS
But the new racket costs money and is supposed to make you a fortune within a month. There's no question about it costing money, but there is considerable doubt it making anyone a fortune.

Invest a dime and you get back $1062.50.

Invest a dollar and you win $15,625.

Invest $10 and you win $156,250.

It—and perhaps the ball offered is better than any other, but nobody has yet been found who has turned his dime or his dollar into the fortune promised.

There are any number of these chains in circulation. One letter received the other day by John Thayer, 28 Cambridge street, Cambridge, is representative of the whole scheme.

Mr. Thayer, whose name should be immediately removed from any letter list upon which it now appears, turned the letter over to the Boston Evening American as a matter of news to expose the racket.

EVANGELICAL APPEAL
The letter he received reads like a combination evangelical appeal and a chain letter.

It's headed: "Lucky Prosperity Club. In God We Trust. Hope-Faith-Prosperity."

On six lines under this heading are printed in six names and addresses, then the following:

"This was started in the hope of bringing prosperity to you."

"Within three days make five copies of this letter, mailing off one to each of the following:

Arthur E. Gibbs of Springfield, sought in connection with the Winchester Institute of Finance investigation, has requested his registration as a broker in the state be cancelled.

The Securities Division today disclosed the request had been received in a letter from Chicago.

The letter was signed with Gibbs' name, was written on a plain piece of paper and bore no return address.

The division had requested Gibbs be present at a hearing Monday. United States marshals had been seeking him in connection with the investigation.

Edmund J. Brandon, regional director of the Securities Exchange Commission, said he would notify federal investigators in Chicago.

"We have the power to subpoena him from any part of the United States," Brandon said.

REILLY SUES Anna Hauptmann
New York, May 4 (INS)—Edward Reilly, charged with defense counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, today struck back at Mrs. Anna Hauptmann with a $22,388.62 suit for false allegations that she had the Hauptmann trial at Flemington.

In his suit filed in Brooklyn, Reilly charged Hauptmann's wife had made an agreement to pay counsel through a defense fund raised by personal appearances and over the radio.

Mrs. Coolidge Boobs Her Hair

Norhampton, May 4—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has bobbed her hair. The bob was brought back with her from the south, where she spent part of the winter, but it did not become known until now, except to a few friends and a hairdresser, though she has been re-established at the Beeches here for several weeks.

One reason why the change of coiffure escaped general observation is probably that the former First Lady wears her hair so perfectly concealed that it would not be readily apparent. Close scrutiny of a recent picture taken recently by her, when Mrs. Coolidge allowed society friends to see it, definitely confirms the report.

Eloper Too Upset To Think of Car

Ruling that marriage upset Francis Onoprienko, Northeastern University student, in all probability, Judge Michael J. Murray in municipal court today dismissed charges against him of using an automobile without authority.

According to the evidence, Onoprienko hired a car from a Tremont street dealer. He took Dorothy Cowen, also a student, to New York where they were married. The car was not returned in the specified time and was reported stolen.

An attorney for Onoprienko told the court the youth was "upset" by his marriage and forgot to return the car. Judge Murray agreed and ordered the student husband freed.

3 STATES HUNT GUN-GUARDED RUM TRUCK

A hunt for a consigned liquor truck was started in three states today.

Customs Inspector William J. Fitzgerald of New Bedford asked state police in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut to seek the truck, believed headed for Boston with 150 cases of liquor.

The truck was conveyed by a sedan carrying three machine gunners. Fitzgerald reported over the state police teletype.

The sedan bore Rhode Island license plates.

The truck bears a license plate beginning with B-35. Fitzgerald reported. The last three numbers were not known.

LINKED TO SHIP
The contraband alcohol is part of a cargo purportedly smuggled into the United States from the British schooner Accuracy, which was seized yesterday in Buzzards Bay off South Dartmouth.

Charles Donovan, captain of the Accuracy, and eight members of his crew were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenne this afternoon for alleged violation of the customs law.

OFFICE SUSPENDED
John V. Madros, Dartmouth policeman, was suspended today for a statement of that town, following seizure yesterday of $45,000 worth of smuggled alcohol at the home of his brother, Victor Madros.

The officer resided with his brother.

Captain Charles Donovan of the Accuracy was held in $500 on charges of violating the customs laws.

Bond of $2500 was set for the eight members of the crew.

They are Fred Clay, members: Annapolis; Ernest Surtin; second engineer, Morris Lait; Simon Le Blanc, cook; Wedgeport; James Hubbard; Wedgeport; Hugh Burns; Stanley, St. Lawrence; Newfoundland; and James F. Harding, Yarmouth, N. S.

The vast majority of the letters (receiving through the mails have the same names at the head of the list all the time.

And the names at the head of the list are the names of the senders.

And instead of sending five letters they are sending thousands of letters, adding prospects for the suckers.

The Lucky Prosperity Club letter is a "dead give away," as received by Thayer.

The No. 6 person listed supposedly sent it to him and to four others.

Yet the letter is a fine example of the kind of thing that thousands were printed and sent out.

And it's an equally safe assumption that they all carried the same name listed No. 1. That's the way the racket is worked.

"Plain the navy and are the world."

Smiling Skipper in Toils

Captain Charles Donovan, at the left, the smiling seaman, is the skipper of the alleged rumboat, Accuracy, now at Commercial wharf. Captain Donovan is being questioned by three attaches of the United States Marshall's office: Deputy U. S. Marshals Barker, Keane and Hurley. The Accuracy was picked up at New Bedford with what was said to be an illegal cargo of liquor. The captain and crew now held in the Federal building will be given a hearing Monday. Margaret Davenport Page and Herbert Gordon Fales at their wedding ceremony.

Just married. The photograph was made at St. Paul's Church at noon today just a few minutes after Margaret Davenport Page became the bride of Herbert Gordon Fales. Scores of society folk from far and near saw nuptial ceremony.

The bride, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Gates Page of Marlborough street, was given into the keeping of her bridegroom by her father, and Dean Philomen F. Sargis read the ceremony.

Two attendants, Miss Susan Davenport Page and Mrs. Thoreau O. Otto (Marjorie Fales) wearing satin striped mouseline, and one of ivory color with cartwheel hair of lacey white straw, preceded the bride to the altar.

White, yellow and lavender muffs were combined in the bridal bouquet, which completed her costume of ivory satin, with long light sleeves, a high neck and long train, and a tulle and rose point lace veil.

Mrs. Page, who is a portrait painter of widespread renown, attended the wedding gown in pale gray with a matching hat and Mrs. Fales was in pearly crepe ensemble.

Dean Fales attended his brother as best man and the usher couple included Henry Bellin duPont of Wilmington, Del., Courtland Green and Donald Jobb of New York. Mr. Carl Morse of New York, Ralph B. Brough of New York, and Mr. William C. O'Connell of Cincinnati, W. Elliott Pratt of Wellesley and Mr. Thomas O. Otto of Miami, Florida.

A great many out-of-town guests attended the ceremony and the wedding reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Page.

Coppery-Gold Rinse

Glorious Tones of Auburn
Assured With Harmless
New Henna Rinse

By THE BEAUTY EDITOR

WHAT IS there about copper-red hair that draws a man like a magnet?

Why is it, psychologists ask, that most of the alluring sirens of history were red-headed women?

It would seem that often by a silken strand of red gold hair these sirens captured and bound the greatest men of their time more firmly than by chains of steel.

Ever since the days of Cleopatra men have been bewitched and ensnared by the alluring loveliness of red hair. That the warm, coppery glints found only in nature and browned hair, hold some irresistible appeal to men, there can be little doubt.

There is little wonder then that women down through the ages have longed for these same coppery highlights and found them in simple vegetable henna.

A new kind of henna "rinse" which will impart shimmering, coppery glints to brown or "mousy colored" hair, without actually changing the color of the hair, has just appeared on the cosmetic horizon. This henna comes in a small, elegant, and undiluted you can even catch the earthy, aromatic odor of the henna plant in tight, moisture-proof cans.

There is no dangerous dye to fear in this new henna rinse. It is absolutely pure and bears the approval stamp of the Good Housekeeping Bureau.

Henna which has been left lying around in closets and bureau drawers, exposed to the air and elements, often loses its strength. It becomes dusty and impure, making results often uncertain. Now such dangers have been eliminated.

This rinse is made of pure Egyptian henna (no better substitute has ever been found). It comes lightly based in airtight containers and is most moderately priced. The small size is priced under 30 cents and the large size is listed as less than one dollar.

To learn more of this new henna rinse which is easily applied at home see The Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American.

Beauty Answers

Question—Will you please tell me what I can do to a skin afflicted with goose pimples? If you could recommend something for it, or tell me what to do, I would appreciate it very much.

R. C. Medford.

Answer—Trade names are not mentioned in this column, so I cannot give you the name of a new product on the market for a condition such as yours. If you will write to me again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to furnish you with this information, however. The product which I have in mind is a soap-base cream, and was created particularly for this type of skin.

THE OTHER WORLD—By Madden Lufkin—The Viking Press, New York.

The writer, Madden Lufkin, probably is new to the majority of American readers of fiction. But she has been and is one of the most popular novelists of the North.

Readers of The Other World will understand the reason for her popularity. She can tell a really good story, for she deals with people she knows and understands.

The central character of The Other World—Foster Voe—may be a poor kind of hero but he is pretty much of a man.

His climb to success in the tropical country of Sumatra against bitter humiliations is graphically told.

Incidentally Miss Lufkin has a first hand, knowledge of the Dutch Colony, for she was born in the Far East and raised in the atmosphere of the exotic Orient.

The marriage ceremony will be performed May 18, by Rev. William Lyons at St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, with a nuptial reception following at the Coppley Place.

Miss Barbara O'Neill will attend the ceremony. She is the daughter of Mrs. O'Neill, Mrs. Ernest Madden of Wellesley, Mrs. Albert O'Neill of New Rochelle, Miss Margaret Devitt of Shrewsbury and Miss Jean Manning of West Roxbury, who complete the bride's group.

The bridesmaids are Miss Helen Leno, as his best man and his parents include John H. O'Neill, Dr. Eugene E. O'Neill, Mr. Ernest McCort, Mr. Joseph J. Deery, Mr. Stantion R. Sullivan, Mr. Albert O'Neill of New Rochelle.

The bridegroom has been given to honor the bride-to-be a novel green and white bride and the bride was the occasion for the announcement of the marriage.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Too Popular With Many
and Not
Dear to One

Which Type of Girl Appeals to You? THE DOVE OR THE RED-PEPPER?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Have you ever considered the tragedy of being too popular with the many, and not dear enough to one?
I am considering looking for a fair job for a fellow 24 years old, am an only son, and have expectations from my uncle. I am invited to numerous parties, and I refuse to go some girl or man will come and get me. I've met lots of girls with whom I could fall in love, but when I suggest a more serious relationship, they say they want a "play" friend; that I'm the perfect pal. What's the matter with me, and have you ever had this problem put up to you?
JUST A PAL

HE SEEMED BORED WITH THIS QUEST
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
For the past six months I have been going with a young man, and I've enjoyed it very much. One evening a friend of mine invited us over for a party. He was a very nice fellow, and while there this young man seemed to be very much bored with the people he met.
I mentioned this to him on the way home, and he became rather angry. He didn't explain what the matter was, and I haven't seen him or heard from him since. As we were both very fond of each other, I can't imagine what the trouble might be.

"GIRLS! GIRLS! Pretty women and plain. Every kind, 'crisp' like, flower merchant on the sidewalk in the Spring. 'Violets, flowering tiny lilies, dark daisies and white roses, jasmene, camellias, delicate flowers—and spectacular ones. Modest—and decorative. Old-fashioned—and hot-house'."
Which kind do YOU like best? In your own mind which does Cupid hand the bouquet to? The one he has peace with and must be gallant to, or the one he has to dodge even while he hands her the prize? THE DOVE, or the RED-PEPPER?
The dove will give you your way. Think of you. Demand little. Give much. Cling to your arm, and make you out a "big, big, brave man." She will be kind, serene. It depends upon what kind of a man you are whether the DOVE can please you always. Things may seem "slow" to you as years go by. The Red-pepper will love you—but "burn you up" on the slightest provocation. Things will not be slow—but sometimes they will be exhausting. She will demand. She will not wonder much if you are pleased or happy. But she can be fascinating, playful, exhilarating.

It depends upon the kind of man you are, which of these two widely different types of girls appeals most to you.
And it depends upon what kind of man you are, whether, whichever you choose, you will not with you had chosen the other!
NELL BRINKLEY.

Adele Garrison's Serial Given in Marriage

POLICE COME UPON SCENE IN WOODS

CHAPTER 336
I STOOD in the opening of the woodland roadway for fully a minute before I ventured to peer out.
Even then I did not step directly into the road from the path, but edged into the undergrowth at the side and, cautiously peering the bushes, looked up and down the road way from that vantage point.

The underbrush grew out into the road quite densely at that spot, and I was able to get almost into the road itself without the danger of anyone seeing me. There was no curve in the road near the spot where I was standing, and I was able to see a long way in both directions. Apparently there was no one within sight or hearing of me.

There certainly was no one stirring in the roadway itself, and though I scrutinized the undergrowth on both sides with meticulous care I could see no movement which would indicate that anyone was concealed behind the dense foliage.

THE MYSTERY
Where could my "father have gone?" Again the question sounded so insistently in my consciousness that I almost thought I had spoken it aloud.
But I knew that I must neither voice the query nor make any other sound. I must not even call my father's name over so cautiously, for from long experience with his method, I was not sure that he would not be expected in the undergrowth within a few minutes of my calling his name.

Boiled Icing Easiest

I VISITED a bakery, which produces 15 tons of cake in a single day!

Sounds like enough for a lifetime, doesn't it? But it also proves without a doubt that it is good cake.
The best of shortening, eggs and flour are used in making these cakes—the ingredients are scaled, so that every cake is exactly like the others. Accuracy is a most important factor in making a large quantity of cakes and, measuring is not thought of as a mere routine, but as a certain number of times to be all alike baked with the identical heat.
Boiled icing is the most popular kind of frosting we make, and it should have a glossy, smooth surface with a soft, fluffy interior.

It should neither be soft and running nor hard and cracked, and to accomplish this we must follow a few precautions. The egg whites should be beaten very stiff, and the sugar added gradually. If not the mixture will be lifeless and dull and soft.
The syrup should have no suggestion of crystallization and it is very easy to combine properly. After the syrup is added to the egg whites, let stand while the egg whites are being beaten. This gives the syrup a chance to cool sufficiently to be of the proper temperature.
And the last important point, beat the frosting until it is very white before placing on the cake. The cake will be more moist and the frosting will be more perfect.

BOILED ICING
1 1/2 cups sugar
5 cup water
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
Put the sugar and water in a saucepan and cook gently until it is a thick syrup. Beat the egg whites until they are stiff and add the vanilla. Beat the mixture until it is very white and fluffy.

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: French Toast, Syrup, Butter, Coffee.
Dinner: Roast Beef, Mashed Potatoes, Asparagus, Green Beans, Salad, Coffee.
Supper: Chicken, Potatoes, Apples, Coffee.

Bridge COUNT ADVERSE HANDS

By MRS. CULBERTSON

I cannot stress strongly enough the importance of counting the opponents' distribution.

Once either a complete or partial count of the opposing distribution is obtained, the proper way to play any hand becomes crystal-clear.

On the deal below, South reached an optimistic four-spade contract. In the early play he made a good guess and found a lucky distribution and at the sixth trick an end-play for the fulfillment of the contract became almost a sure thing, because of the count the Declarer had obtained. The play in detail follows:

North, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
♠ 9 7 2
♥ A 7 6 4 3
♦ A 10 9 8 7
♣ K 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

South, Declarer.
♠ 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
♥ A 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
♦ A 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2
♣ K 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2

I will not give the details of the bidding. North stretched a point and opened with a club, and after the first round of bidding the King in his own hand and West showed up the King. South shifted to clubs. The Ace was won and declarer's own hand was entered by ruffing a club.

South, to avoid the loss of more than two trump tricks, simply ruffed down the spade Jack and the ten dropped. East won with the King and led another club, which South ruffed and West showed out.

Oil FOR THE Lamps of CHINA

By ALICE TISDALE HOBART

Stephen Plans for Lucy

CHAPTER 9

(This is a serialisation of the Cosmopolitan production soon to be released by Warner Brothers.)

"The red color's good," the boss broke in. "Good Chinese red—that'll please 'em. Somebody was smart to think of that. And making it of tin was a clever scheme too. Chinese will be making them out of old oil tins as soon as the Company begins charging for them."
Circular letter in the mail today says they're going to give the lamps away all over China—for three months. That'll stimulate business.

"Umph!" said Jim. "Suppose they've done so many things to the idea they've forgotten it came out of our office."
"Teamwork, that lamp!" The boss carried one to his desk.

The other men went back to their work, but Stephen asked the lamp to his desk. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese.

Anger Vanishes
The company was exploiting him in not acknowledging his light in the lamp. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese.

There was the wedding ring to buy, the minister to see, and the American couple who must be witnesses to the ceremony. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese.

He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese. He had been thinking of it since the day he had bought it from the Chinese.

EASY TO BECOME AN INDIAN PRINCESS

By ANNIE BRINK
Fashion Editor
WITH THE ARRIVAL of the Hindu Sari in town—guaranteed to "give you a mystical, glamorous feeling"—the mode of India, as sponsored by Schiaparelli and Alix, is firmly established.

This is one fashion that is definitely "typed," and unless you are somewhat brown-skinned, smooth-haired, and possess a dark, liquid brilliance of the eyes—it really is not for you.

There are some things that grate on the finer sensibilities. Like a blonde tango dancer, the very type of India is not to be equaled. However, it is amazing how many brunettes can give the right personality simply by dressing in the style of the East.

And half of the fun of the whole thing would be assembling jewelry to carry out the Maharajah idea. Indian and South American jewelry, earrings and even dangle bracelets, are all good. And you can do with purely Occidental jewelry on Boston shop counters.

Recently a whole exciting consignment of Indian turquoise jewelry arrived at a Boston store, and you may find heavy bracelets, necklaces, earrings, and rings, and pins worthy of a great Maharajah for very little price.

They are all made in Kashmir by a handful of people not more than a hundred of India, and many millions know the art of setting these turquoise chips in a mosaic pattern.

NORTH WALKER'S 2ND WILSON'S BEST BET AT JAMAICA

CHOICE To Cop SECOND BRIGHT DAWN IN SIXTH

By Dave Wilson
Jamaica, N. Y., May 4.—North Wales, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's imported colt, has performed so well in morning trials that we must not only rate him the probable winner of the six furlong of the race on Sunday, but the safest hazard on a smart card here tomorrow afternoon.

FIRST RACE.
LADY ROMA, BEREIT, CASH BOOK.
LADY ROMA, second to Golden Lady only a few days back, is entitled to top rating in this sort of race on account of that effort. BEREIT, a fast morning walker, wishes to offer the contention. CASH BOOK will be difficult to keep out of the picture.

SECOND RACE.
NORTH WALKER, FINESTUOUS, MALBROCK.
NORTH WALKER 2ND, making her first start on the Jamaica track, comes up to this with a record of brilliant success. Only a few days back, the foreigner whirled six panels in 1:23. Her final was a blazing half mile in 1:24. FINESTUOUS, the main danger, is displaying high speed in better company last time. MALBROCK is a strong possibility.

THIRD RACE.
WHITE COCKADE, WIA HAK, SPARTA.
Rebids any that WHITE COCKADE is the best juvenile collected in this sector to date. White cockade, who is in his start in a common career. WIA HAK figures to be a strong contender to hand SPARTA. The latter stopped on the money last time.

FOURTH RACE.
OPEN RANGE, BLACK BUDDY, QUEL.
Shooting for price and expect to get same as OPEN RANGE runs back to his fast morning trials. Turned six panels in 1:23. The latter for a final start in 1:24. BLACK BUDDY, an erratic colt, will be hard to down if in a running mood. QUEL, a fast morning walker, is a strong possibility.

FIFTH RACE.
THIS WAY, YOLKE MAID, GARDEN MESSAGE.
Have a hunch that THIS WAY will be in the money in this affair. Whizzed six furlongs in 1:24. YOLKE MAID, who is in his start in a common career. GARDEN MESSAGE is a strong possibility.

SIXTH RACE.
B. B. STABLE ENTRY, CROWDED HORSES, HAPPY HUNTER.
The B. B. stable entry of BRIGHTON and MY SELECTION will be hard to down for top money. CROWDED HORSES, second to BRIGHTON, is a strong possibility.

SHANTY CARDS Hogan Sets Beat Tribe ATTEPEE

By Associated Press
New York, May 4.—Two new leaders stood at the top of the major league batting lists today while the pace-setters of a week ago looked up from somewhat lower levels.

But the clotting of Frank Rogers and Rollie Heming of the St. Louis Browns weren't the only outstanding hitting feats of the past week.

Hogan, eighth in the National League last week, cracked six hits in 10 times up and lifted his average 90 points to 44 to capture the lead formerly held by Burgess Weisback of St. Louis. Heming, not even rated as a "regular" when the previous list was made up, came through often enough to get in at the top of the American League at 30.

Other high spots were the continued streak of Floyd (Jack) Vaughan of Pittsburgh, second National League hitter, who hit 10 times in 20 attempts to boost his mark to 44; the rise of the New York Giants' slugger, the senior top of the Athletics' ace in the American League.

These Glants, Mel Ott, Hank Aaron, who hit 10 times in 20 attempts to boost his mark to 44; the rise of the New York Giants' slugger, the senior top of the Athletics' ace in the American League.

Hartford, Conn., May 4 (AP)—State Athletic Commissioner Joseph H. Viscusi, a former manager of Jimmy Lee, was charged with having been involved in a fight with Leo of the New Haven April 24.

Commissioner Lawlor said Viscusi's conduct "represents an insult to the public and a challenge to disciplinary action."

Mr. Boston DeGlane Wants Title Back

By Jack Conway

HENRI DEGLANE, French heavyweight wrestler, is back in this country seeking the world championship he lost to Ed Don George at the Garden two years ago last March.

DeGlane brought his pretty French bride here with him. They have rented an apartment on Charles street and plan to remain here until Henri has regained his lost title.

DeGlane was a heavy favorite to win the title, but he was defeated by the champion Ed Don George in the championship match. DeGlane was the better of the two, but he was out of his mind at the time he suffered a broken collarbone.

The injury occurred when Don George, who was a wild plunge under the ring. Don George struck the upper part of DeGlane's right shoulder with terrific force and shattered the collarbone. A few minutes later George scored the first fall of the match.

DeGlane was in great pain when he was removed to his dressing room. It was supposed that he was one of the seconds that it would be best for him not to return to the mat.

Word DeGlane is a true champion, said the fiery Frenchman, and I shall lose my title in the ring under fire.

It took George only a few minutes to score the winning loss.

WAR RECORD

DEGLANE's display of courage was the same as the one he gave during the World War. He was 35 years of age at the time of the war and could not join the colors. He was given a commission in his father's trucks as he carried him to the front lines.

One night the truck carrying Henry was hit by a German shell, and the youngster and his wife were ejected along with the truck. DeGlane landed in a field, and he was seriously injured.

Following the war Henry attended one of the French military schools. It was there that he was introduced in physical training and in wrestling. He is today France's leading athlete.

Henry will make his first Boston appearance since he returned to this country when he opposes Ed Don George at the Garden a week from Monday night.

Ed George will battle George Zarkas in the feature bout. Zarkas is a card. I do not believe Zarkas will experience any difficulty in his fight to match DeGlane with the winner.

GOVERNOR'S GOLF

GOVERNOR CURLEY will gain some relaxation from the cares of state when he plays golf at the Bunker Hunt Club on Sunday.

Gov. White told me that elaborate preparations have been made for the day, while in the evening there will be a swanky dinner.

Governor Curley likes golf. I have heard he will play at the Bunker Hunt Club and at Cyster Harbor. Gov. Curley has been with the Police Commissioner, Eugene A. McCarthy, and other friends.

TITLE BOUTS

TOM Keanly informs me there will be at least 35 bouts at the state amateur boxing championships, which will be held at the Arena next Monday night.

Entrance have been received from all parts of the state, and a result will be the class of the sport will appear in action.

There will be bouts at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

The outstanding scrappers who have secured the prize are Jimmy Garrett, New England champion, Boston; Eddie Carroll, Merrimack Valley champion, Lowell; Walter Wask, Fitchburg; Eddie A. Lowell; Tony Lopez, Taunton; sixteenth 147 pounder who should make the going merry for each other and the fans.

Representatives in the 135-pound class are Freddie Canuso, Fall River; Ralph Cooper, Beverly; Dominic Colonato, Wapine; James Group, Framingham; Al Fardio, Beverly; and Rene Chausse, Taunton.

Frankie Frisch always aims to please.

Especially when it means extra dollars for his St. Louis Cardinals, who may be world champions to you and me but can rarely prove it by the attendance in the old home town on the banks of Old Man River.

Thus, when Frankie was told that "Dizzy" Dean on the mound against Babe Ruth, tomorrow will draw 10,000 or more cash customers, a few minutes later he gasped and replied:

"I have only one thing to pitch, and that is 'Dizzy' Dean."

Now Frankie was strutting the truth a mile.

He first took over the management of the Cards. Frisch would start "Dizzy" against the Braves here on Sunday, holidays or week days.

And Friday's postponement, under ordinary circumstances, would have delayed the illustrious Jerome's next start until Monday, when he'll be in Brooklyn.

But he only goes to show that Mr. Frisch will even tell little white lies when he feels like being obliging.

Every big league club has its fortune teller either through his or his yearly refusal to offer due the public is clamoring to see.

In fact, Frisch is passing up plenty of "money" by nominating "Dizzy" to pitch against the Detroit Tigers in the event the series is postponed.

He said start Paul "Dizzy" Dean, who would be hurling today if Friday's game had been played, there would be twice as many patrons present.

But as long as Babe and "Dizzy" are on the mound, everybody is satisfied.

Ruth could be feeling better. When the Ladies Day postponement was decided upon, he was sitting in the warm clubhouse, huddled up to his ears and still felt chilly.

"But don't worry," he said, "I'll be out there Sunday."

The Babe is one of four tribal victims.

"Pinkie" Whitely is in bed, and Ed Brandt and Hal Lee, while up and about, are far from well.

Manager Billy McKechnie's present plans call for him to pitch Ben Hanover today and Phil Rhee tomorrow, though Brandt will get the call in "Dizzy" in the Sabbath contest if he feels equal to the task.

Mr. Boston's George Zarkas will wild plunge under the ring. Don George struck the upper part of DeGlane's right shoulder with terrific force and shattered the collarbone. A few minutes later George scored the first fall of the match.

DeGlane was in great pain when he was removed to his dressing room. It was supposed that he was one of the seconds that it would be best for him not to return to the mat.

Word DeGlane is a true champion, said the fiery Frenchman, and I shall lose my title in the ring under fire.

It took George only a few minutes to score the winning loss.

WAR RECORD

DEGLANE's display of courage was the same as the one he gave during the World War. He was 35 years of age at the time of the war and could not join the colors. He was given a commission in his father's trucks as he carried him to the front lines.

One night the truck carrying Henry was hit by a German shell, and the youngster and his wife were ejected along with the truck. DeGlane landed in a field, and he was seriously injured.

Following the war Henry attended one of the French military schools. It was there that he was introduced in physical training and in wrestling. He is today France's leading athlete.

Henry will make his first Boston appearance since he returned to this country when he opposes Ed Don George at the Garden a week from Monday night.

Ed George will battle George Zarkas in the feature bout. Zarkas is a card. I do not believe Zarkas will experience any difficulty in his fight to match DeGlane with the winner.

GOVERNOR'S GOLF

GOVERNOR CURLEY will gain some relaxation from the cares of state when he plays golf at the Bunker Hunt Club on Sunday.

Gov. White told me that elaborate preparations have been made for the day, while in the evening there will be a swanky dinner.

Governor Curley likes golf. I have heard he will play at the Bunker Hunt Club and at Cyster Harbor. Gov. Curley has been with the Police Commissioner, Eugene A. McCarthy, and other friends.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Submarine Sends All to the Life Boats

Survivor Tells of Mid-Ocean Attack

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

And now, boys and girls, comes Louis Baker, of 717 East 231st Street, New York City, with yarn of an adventure with a German submarine that puts him right into the Adventures Club.

FLOYD GIBBONS

It's a long story, mates, but just look at the way Louis marshals his facts to save space. O. Henry couldn't have done better. Let's listen in on Louis.

"Eighteen years ago, Cardiff, Wales, signed on the good old tramp steamer Santa Isabel—coal—West Africa; radio operator my berth; officers and engineers all real guys—only use for neckties was to tie up sore fingers; crew, all chinks; captain, 'Chinless Jellyfish.' Off Africa—thirty miles west of Dakar, Senegal—things began to happen."

"Gosh! that's telling it. Isn't it? You can see that Louis is an old radio operator by the way he tells his story. And, by the way, boys and girls, did you never hear those funny stories get around the world so fast? You know—you hear one in San Francisco and think you've got a new one. Then you get to China and start to tell it and everybody walks away. It's an old one to them. That's because those doggone radio operators on the ships pass the time by tapping out stories to one another—thousands of miles apart. It helps keep the boys awake and on the job and passes the time in an agreeable way."

But let's get some more of Louis's story—radio style.

"Just off watch—going to bunk. Voice, 'Torpedo just missed—Aw, nerf!—no—truth—officer on bridge says so. Harry Blinfield says so—must be true—Harry always meets them—every trip. Out on deck in a jiffy—all crew dotted up in Sunday best already there—all positions deserted—lots of frightened chinks."

And it was a submarine, boys and girls, and Louis is still tapping out the story on his key.

"Sub off port bow—on surface—three miles—two sweet six-inch guns popping away at us—we had one smaller gun—blazed away, but like trying to shoot cow jumping over the moon—creaky, but fascinating, watching flashes from sub."

"To work—tapping out SOS on my key—captain up in air—no orders for me, but sent SOS just the same—sent position of ship—after unequal battle captain lowers our flag—does not notify gunners—we fire 12 rounds—violation of international law to fire after flag down—we paid for it."

"To the boats—only two—my pal, Harry, chief officer and I with chinks take port boat—same side as sub—35 degree angle—shells bursting all around—lower away—hit water, but floated—cleared ship by miracle—drenched—boat half filled water—shells hitting close—not a chance—sub comes at us—expect to be sunk for flag trick—No—'Captain on board, please,' Germans asking politely—No, chief officer—'Come aboard.'"

"Sub takes chief aboard—tough job—speeds away seeking captain in our smoke screen—give Isabel few more shells—down she goes—standing on end—good girl—so long."

"French sub-chaser on horizon—got my SOS—coming fast—sub turns and heads for our lifeboat—top speed—collision certain—maybe drown us—revenge for flag incident—chinks frantic—I in howl—sub tears at us—spray rising high from bow—our chief officer on deck—Germans getting ready—summerge."

"Bang!—collision—I grab sub's bow—terrorized chinks climb my back and board sub—French boat throws a few shells—never mind us—must get sub—between two fires—sub never pauses—chief officer and chinks swept off sub's deck—I stay in lifeboat—pick up others—one chink grabbed by shark—lifeboat badly damaged—sinking—French boat steam up—sub gone—submerged—French make us jump overboard—pick us up."

By golly, Louis, that's telling it. I can almost hear you rapping it out just that way on your key.

Louis says the chief officer told him afterward that the German commander of the sub had intended towing the lifeboats toward shore, but the arrival of the French boat changed all that. The sub had to get away fast then or in turn be sent to the bottom.

The chief officer said that the Germans were very polite to him. When they sighted the enemy boat they told him they could not wait to return him to his lifeboat, but that they would speed in that direction and the chief could jump when alongside his boat.

That's why the sub tore at the little lifeboat. In their excitement they steered too close and collided with it by accident. Thanks for a swell yarn, Louis, and I'm glad you give our former submarine credit for gallantry. I know what you went through and the mental suffering you must have had when that sub bore down on your little boat.

I had an adventure almost as exciting as yours when they torpedoed me on the Laramie, and that sub came to the surface—right alongside our boat—and told us very politely not to worry, as an Allied boat would soon pick us up. And it did.

I'll be seeing you all again Monday with a yarn of World War adventure in Boston Harbor.

SANE LEGISLATION

Wanted
BY UTILITY
Leader

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Sane utility legislation is still desired by some prominent executives. Although somewhat slow to break into print the trend must be obvious to the most stubborn.

M. Hobart Porter, president of American Water Works & Electric, Inc., and others, adds that the new legislation is a reasonable one. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality.

Professor W. M. Sprague of Harvard gave the Senate banking subcommittee qualified approval of the bill. He said that the bill is a reasonable one. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality.

Nutrition: The reduction continues to ship into new high ground without apparent effort. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality.

The month for blue chip common stocks has reduced returns in some instances to absurd levels. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality.

Short: The average investor would do well to look up the type of stock referred to in the Dresser Manufacturers is gaining ground. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality. The fact that it is in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board already has enough authority to make it a reality.

VULCAN FIRST

Quarter Lower

Business of Vulcan Detention Company in the first quarter of this year probably was less profitable than in the first quarter of 1934, though not altogether unprofitable. W. Butterfield, president, stated at the annual meeting that the company had made a profit of $100,000.

London, May 3.—The Stock Exchange today started early celebration of the jubilee. Business this afternoon was semi-neglected.

British government bonds rallied $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ % on Prime Minister MacDonald's speech, implying that heavy increases in armaments expenditure is delayed. Consequently, station shares relapsed on profit-taking, but closed above the worst.

British Rails were $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ % up, anticipating heavy jubilee traffics.

Copper and Steel shares were stimu-
